Province lays out its 5-year, $5.5B plan

Construction. NDP says the bulk of funds will go to roads and bridges, with more earmarked for infrastructure and flood protection

The Manitoba government has outlined how it will spend $5.5 billion — some of it from increased provincial sales taxes — to fix roads and bridges and boost flood protection over the next five years.

The governing NDP says the bulk of the money — $3.7 billion — is to go to roads and bridges. Another $1.5 billion is to be spent on municipal infrastructure, while $320 million is earmarked for flood protection.

About $1.5 billion is to come from extra revenue generated by an increase in the provincial sales tax from seven to eight per cent that the government brought in last summer.

"We could not be having this ambitious investment in infrastructure without this one cent on the dollar. Period," said Infrastructure Minister Steve Ashton on Wednesday.

About $66 million in funding, totalling $250 million, has been earmarked for streets in Winnipeg, the city said.

Ashton couldn't say how much the government had spent on infrastructure over the last five years, but added the $5.5-billion commitment does represent an increase.

But Conservative Leader Brian Pallister said the five-year plan is just a way for the NDP to justify its tax hike.

The government said the plan is to be independently reviewed each year and the report made public. Ashton said the NDP hopes getting shovels in the ground will help convince skeptics that the tax increase was justified. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Manitoba First Nations

Betting on job creation as model for northern casino

Northern Manitoba will be the next area of the province that will be home to a First Nations owned and operated casino.

The Assembly of Manitoba Chiefs says in a release that the Thompson region has been selected for construction of its latest gaming outlet. The assembly says it has support for the project from Thompson Mayor Tim Johnston and local MLA Steve Ashton.

A date for the opening has not been set, but the organization says construction will move along quickly. The casino is expected to create about 140 jobs and will be similar in size to facilities in The Pas and in downtown Winnipeg.

The assembly will be opening its Sand Hills Casino, east of Brandon, in late May. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winnipeg driving instructor arrested

A Winnipeg driving instructor has been arrested after being accused of touching his students in an inappropriate way.

Winnipeg police said they were made aware of a man who was accused of touching women in his car while giving them driving instructions.

Most recently, an 18-year-old woman made a complaint after she said she was touched in January.

Police arrested Jasbir Brar, 56 and charged him with two counts of sexual assault and one count of sexual exploitation. METRO

City crews work extended hours to thaw frozen pipes

'Very challenging'

Restoring service to apartment blocks has taken crews up to 14 hours, official says

As frozen pipes continue to leave hundreds of Winnipeggers without running water, the city showed media exactly what crews trying to fix the problem are facing Wednesday.

"It's very challenging, and it can take a long time to do," explained field service operations engineer Tim Shanks of the city's water and waste department, as two workers used one of the city's three large thawing machines to tackle a frozen line under a West End street Wednesday afternoon. "We've extended our hours and our crews are trying very hard to work on this backlog."

More than 600 homes are still without water due to frozen pipes, and Mayor Sam Katz reportedly told media earlier in the day the city is considering paying for those without running water to stay in hotel rooms while the problem is being fixed. In the meantime, the city is testing a new thawing device and providing those dealing with frozen lines with hoses to hook up to their neighbour's connections.

Guacamole could just end: Chipotle

Bland burrito. Climate change could force chain to pull avocado spread off its menu

Climate change could knock your favourite fast foods off the menu.

Restaurant chain Chipotle is warning that it may have to temporarily stop serving guacamole or certain salsas in the event of extreme weather because of climate change.

"Increasing weather volatility or other long-term changes in global weather patterns, including any changes associated with global climate change, could have a significant impact on the price or availability of some of our ingredients," the restaurant said in its annual report released last month.

Other major fast-food chains (see below), are bracing for the long-term effects of a warmer planet and severe weather on the crops they use.

If climate change makes a key ingredient, such as avocados, too expensive, Chipotle says it may have to pull dishes like guacamole from the menu instead of paying the higher price for the raw ingredients.

Chipotle pointed to droughts in the U.S. over the past two years, which have driven up the price of beef, as an example of the type of extreme weather they're worried about.

Professor Sylvain Charlebois, at the University of Guelph's College of Management and Economics, says restaurants have good reason to worry. She, too, points to the ongoing drought in California, which is driving up the price of lettuce, strawberries and almonds. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Drive-through might also run dry

It may be the first time Chipotle mentions climate change in its annual report, but the Colorado-based chain is definitely not the only major fast-food company worried about the effects a changing climate could have on their ability to serve certain foods.

In its annual report, Tim Hortons says variations in the weather could take a toll on the growing conditions of crucial agricultural supplies, mainly coffee, wheat and sugar, meaning doughnuts, double-doubles or pretty much everything it serves.

"Over time, climate change may result in changes in sea levels, weather and temperature change, disease and pest levels, drought and fires, and resource availability," the chain's annual report says.

McDonald's is also concerned about the costs posed by the "effects of climate change, greenhouse gases, energy and water resources," as the restaurant chain says in its most recent annual report. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

More relaxed pot laws may be in the pipeline

Criminal Code. As it now stands, anyone convicted of possessing small amounts of marijuana can be jailed for up to 5 years

The Conservative government is seriously considering more lenient marijuana laws that would allow police to ticket anyone caught with small amounts of pot instead of laying charges, Justice Minister Peter MacKay said Wednesday.

"We're not talking about decriminalization or legalization," MacKay said following the weekly Conservative caucus meeting on Parliament Hill.

"The Criminal Code would still be available to police, but we would look at options that would ... allow police to ticket those types of offences."

Prime Minister Stephen Harper is open to such an approach, he added.

the past that such a move was under consideration. The country's police chiefs — as well as some Tory caucus members — have long called for ticketing people for pot possession instead of laying criminal charges.

But MacKay has also been among the Conservatives' fiercest critics of Liberal Leader Justin Trudeau's stance on the issue. Trudeau supports the legalization of marijuana, a position the Tories have mocked with gleeful abandon.

Under the Criminal Code as it now stands, anyone convicted of possessing small amounts of marijuana can be jailed for up to five years. First-time offenders can face fines of up to $1,000 or as much as six months in jail. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Still probing

Provincial police overseeing Ford investigation

Ontario's provincial police are now overseeing an investigation into the activities of Toronto's Mayor Rob Ford, who has repeatedly attacked the legitimacy of the probe, Toronto's police Chief Bill Blair said Wednesday.

Ford's lawyer immediately denounced the oversight change, which leaves senior city investigators on the case, as "meaningless."

In a letter to OPP Commissioner Chris Lewis, Blair laid out his reasons for asking his provincial colleagues for help.

"I am taking this step to avoid the distractions that have assumed such recent prominence," Blair said in the letter.

Ford, who has vociferously challenged the chief to arrest him, has branded the investigation political. He has publicly accused Blair of wasting tax money — with little result.

UN envoy threatened, driven from Crimea by armed men

A special UN envoy cut short his mission in Crimea on Wednesday after being threatened by 10 to 15 armed men and ordered to leave the region, UN officials said.

But UN Deputy Secretary-General Jan Eliasson said Serry later decided it was important to go, given the "dramatic circumstances."

Canadian journalist on trial in Egypt speaks out in court

An Egyptian-Canadian journalist imprisoned in Cairo told an Egyptian court Wednesday that he could "never possibly betray his country," testifying in a case accusing him and other colleagues of being terrorists.

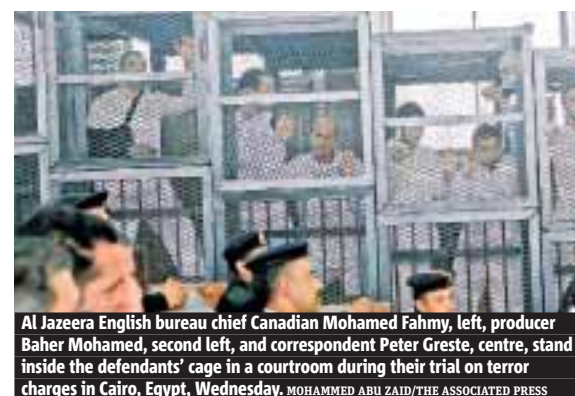

Mohamed Fahmy — who is the acting Egypt bureau chief for satellite news broadcaster Al Jazeera English — addressed the court, saying he works as a journalist and is from a conservative and patriotic family from Port Said.

He appeared with his arm in a sling and asked for the court to release him for treatment for the injury, which he said he suffered before being arrested.

Egypt's state MENA news agency reported that the judge adjourned the trial until March 24 after hearing Fahmy speak.

Fahmy is on trial with two other Al Jazeera English journalists and 17 other defendants on charges accusing them of joining a terrorist group, aiding a terrorist group and endangering national security.

Authorities accuse Al Jazeera of being a platform for ousted Islamist president Mohammed Morsi's supporters and his Muslim Brotherhood group. The network denies that, saying its journalists were only doing their jobs. Those arrested include Fahmy, Australian correspondent Peter Greste and Egyptian producer Baher Mohamed, who have been behind bars since Dec. 29. All have pleaded not guilty. Others are being tried in absentia.

During Wednesday's hearing, defence lawyer Khaled Abu Bakr asked that the court review reports filed by the journalists, while also asking for an independent panel of media professors to review the footage and decide whether it could be a threat to Egypt's national security.

The judge denied the request, MENA reported, saying it was up to the court to decide whether the videos were a threat to national security.

The first witness for the prosecution was a national security officer who said Fahmy is a member of the Brotherhood.

The trial marks the first time Egypt has prosecuted journalists on terrorism-related charges. It comes amid an extensive crackdown on some secular dissidents and Brotherhood supporters.

As world leaders meet in Paris, France sends Russia a warship

Ukraine. Country finds itself wedged between diplomatic efforts and economic interests

A French-built warship designed to strengthen Russia's ability to deploy troops, tanks and helicopter gunships is getting its first test run Wednesday — just as Western powers are trying to rein in Russian President Vladimir Putin's military threat to Ukraine.

A spokesman for the shipbuilder says the Vladivostok helicopter carrier is setting sail from the French Atlantic port of Saint-Nazaire. A few hundred kilometres away in Paris, France's government is hosting American, Russian and other leading world diplomats Wednesday amid mounting tensions over Ukraine.

The warship is part of a $1.8-billion deal that marked the biggest-ever sale of NATO weaponry to Moscow, a deal that already raised eyebrows both within Russia's military circles and among France's Western allies in 2011.

France has criticized Russia's military incursion into Ukraine's Black Sea peninsula of Crimea, but says it has no plans to scrap the defence deal.

That's because France, like many of Russia's European trading partners, has found itself wedged between efforts to squeeze Russia diplomatically and its own economic interests. The French government's top priority is reviving its lacklustre economy and battling unemployment, and this deal underpins some 1,000 jobs.

The Vladivostok is on track to be delivered by the last quarter of this year, said spokesman Emmanuel Gaudez of DCNS, a state-backed naval shipbuilder manufacturing the warships along with South Korean-controlled shipbuilder STX.

A few Russian customers and military personnel are to visit the ship later this month, and a larger Russian delegation is expected in June, company officials said.

"But now with what's happening in Ukraine, perhaps they have other priorities — I don't know," said a CGT labour union delegate on the STX board. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Vatican. Pope Francis 'continues to deny' church role in sex-abuse scandals

Pope Francis is coming under increasing criticism that he simply doesn't get it on sex abuse.

Three months after the Vatican announced a commission of experts to study best practices on protecting children, no action has been taken, no members appointed, no statute outlining the commission's scope approved.

Francis hasn't met with any victims, hasn't moved to oust a bishop convicted in 2012 of failing to report a suspected abuser, and on Wednesday insisted that the church had been unfairly attacked on abuse, using the defensive rhetoric of the Vatican from a decade ago.

Victims advocates said his tone was archaic and urged Francis to show the same compassion he offers the sick, the poor and disabled to people who were raped by priests when they were children.

"Under Pope Francis, the Vatican continues to deny its role in creating and maintaining a culture where upholding the reputation of the church is prioritized over the safety of children," said Maeve

Lewis, executive director of the Irish victims' support group One in Four.

Francis has only spoken out a few times on abuse and his toughest words weren't even pronounced. Francis apparently scrapped his prepared Dec. 2 speech to bishops from the Netherlands, who have been dealing with revelations that some 20,000 children were sexually abused in Dutch Catholic institutions over the past 65 years. Instead, Francis spoke to the bishops off-the-cuff. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Alberta

Roundup can't drag many wild horses away

The Alberta government says just over a dozen animals were captured in the province's wild horse roundup that concluded last week.

Three permits had been issued in January to allow the capture of up to 200 feral horses near Sundre.

Fifteen animals were corralled in the end, said Alberta Environment spokeswoman Carrie Sancartier.

The licence holders don't have to say what happened to the horses, she added.

The roundup drew the ire of animal rights activists who said many of the horses were destined for slaughterhouses.

The government said the capture was necessary to keep a ballooning population in check.

Sancartier said the government will be doing its yearly feral horse count in the coming weeks and provide the numbers to a feral horse advisory committee.

WHO's new sugar target: About six teaspoons a day

Pushback. Nutritional experts say food industry would need to dramatically reformulate products to meet the targets

The World Health Organization is again urging people to lower the amount of sugar they eat, suggesting there are health benefits to restricting so-called free sugars to less than five per cent of one's dietary intake.

For the average adult, that would be about six teaspoons (30 millilitres) of sugar a day — less than the sugar contained in a single can of sugar-sweetened soda. For children, it could be as low as three teaspoons (15 ml) of sugar a day, said Dr. Francesco Branca, director of the WHO's department of nutrition for health and development.

JONATHAN HAYWARD/THE CANADIAN PRESS

In draft recommendations issued Wednesday, the Geneva-based global health agency said people should limit their intake of sugar to no more than 10 per cent of their daily calorie intake, but if they could get to five per cent, that would be better.

"The five per cent would probably be the ideal one and the 10 per cent is the more realistic one," Branca said.

Both would likely be a stretch for many Canadians.

The most recent Canadian data, from the 2004 Canadian Consumer Health Survey, shows that on average Canadians consumed 110 grams of sugar a day that year — the equivalent of 26 teaspoons (130 ml) of sugar. Sugar calories made up 21.4 per cent of the average Canadian's total calorie intake.

AIDS virus treatment

Doctors hopeful second baby born with HIV is now in remission

A second baby born with the AIDS virus may have had her infection put into remission and possibly cured by very early treatment — in this instance, four hours after birth, doctors revealed Wednesday at an AIDS conference in Boston.

The girl was born in suburban Los Angeles last April, a month after researchers announced the first case from Mississippi.

That case was a medical first that led doctors worldwide to rethink how fast and hard to treat infants born with HIV. The California doctors followed that example.

The Mississippi baby is now 3 1/2 and seems HIV-free despite no treatment for about two years. The Los Angeles baby is still getting AIDS medicines, so the status of her infection is not as clear.

Quebecers will go to the polls next month with the Parti Québécois chasing a majority government that could lead to another independence referendum.

Buying goodwill

Small carbon levy key to pipeline support: Wall

Saskatchewan's premier says he's ready to impose a modest levy on the oil and gas sector if it helps buy some goodwill in Washington.

Brad Wall is in the U.S. capital today, and he's talking about ways to build support for the Keystone XL pipeline.

He says President Barack Obama has a political window to approve the project before this year's midterm elections — and it might be easier for him to give the OK if he can point to some Canadian action on the environment.

The Canadian government says it's already working with the U.S. on oil and gas regulation.

Wall says he'd like to start slowly, at $15 a tonne like Alberta's current levy — a rate environmental groups have dismissed as ineffective and which the Alberta government itself has mused about tripling.

Dead soldier's mom was 'devastated.'

Nicholson says he'll personally speak to corporal's mother

The government blunder that delivered a one-cent cheque to the mother of a dead Canadian soldier will never be repeated, Defence Minister Rob Nicholson vowed Wednesday in the House of Commons.

And at least one other cabinet minister is blaming an unidentified bureaucrat for the mistake, saying that the government employee responsible for the error should apologize.

Nicholson, who issued his own abject apology for the mistake Tuesday during question period, repeated himself Wednesday and said he's arranged to speak personally with Cpl. Justin Stark's mother, Denise.

Arar inquiry follow-up

Advocates call for border services watchdog

A British Columbia-based civil rights group is renewing its call for an independent body to monitor the agency that polices Canada's borders, more than seven years after a public inquiry into the Maher Arar case recommended more outside oversight.

The B.C. Civil Liberties Association says the federal government has done nothing to implement a recommendation from the Arar inquiry that an outside body reviews the duties of the Canada Border Services Agency.

The association's executive director, Josh Paterson, said he's written the federal public safety minister asking for the creation of an independent body to monitor all areas where the agency acts like a police force.

"There is no independent oversight of the activities of their officers," Paterson said Wednesday in Vancouver. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Spring Parade Showcase

BY MIKE MOORE, PRESIDENT, MANITOBA HOME BUILDERS' ASSOCIATION

"THESE PARADE
HOMES REPRESENT
THE ABSOLUTE BEST
IN DESIGN AND CONSTRUCTION IN MANITOBA AND,
FOR THAT MATTER, CANADA"

The Manitoba Home Builders' Association is proud to present this year's version of our annual showcase of new homes, the largest and best Parade of Homes in all of Canada. March symbolizes Spring, warmer weather and the ability to finally get outside and walk around. This has been a particularly long and cold winter and we've been waiting for the opportunity to visit the various new neighbourhoods throughout our City and Province when they come to life with these fabulous new homes. We are proud and delighted to showcase 36 different builders who will be presenting 122 homes in 31 unique and different neighbourhoods.

These Parade homes represent the absolute best in design and construction in Manitoba and, for that matter, Canada. The skilled craftsmanship that goes into each new home will be evident during your visit. We take great pride in the statement that Manitoba new homes are the best built homes in the country.

A new and exciting feature of this year's Parade is that you, the consumer, gets to decide who wins all of the awards. Everyone who visits any of the homes can rate on site in four different categories:

- a) Overall value and quality of home
- b) Functionality, traffic flow and proportion
- c) Special design features
- d) Interior visual appeal

Every home will have a QR code associated with it. Simply download the QR code app on your smart phone, click on the code in the home and it will take you to a ranking page for that home where you can award it from one to five stars in each of the four listed criteria. If you don't have your phone handy, you can also go to (www.paradeofhomeselect.ca) and rank each home you visited. It's easy to do and, after the Parade, you'll be able to compare your rankings with the winners posted.

MHBA builder members appreciate the importance of your decision to purchase a new home. That is why they encourage Parade visitors to look carefully at each detail, talk to the sales agents and return for additional visits. After all, show homes are open after the Parade, too. Our builders want to ensure that you are matched with the home that is perfect for your life situation and family for years to come. We believe that this year's selection of new homes offers the right design and the right location for everyone. Be sure to visit as many homes as possible to take full advantage of the Parade. The more homes you visit, the more new and exciting ideas you will get.

Manitoba's new home construction industry is strong and vibrant. MHBA member builders and suppliers keep abreast of the latest technology, trends and techniques to ensure that your new home offers affordability, quality and choice. There has never been a better time to purchase a new home.

Thank you for visiting the 2014 Spring Parade of Homes.

Virtual bank robber to blame for fall: Flexcoin

Digital currency. Alberta 'bank' focused on bitcoins folds after it claims attacker 'exploited a flaw in the code'

An Alberta-based online "bank" specializing in bitcoins is blaming a technical flaw for the theft of its digital currency that forced it to close its doors this week.

In a statement on its website Wednesday, Flexcoin says 896 bitcoins were stolen from its online vault. That translates into a loss of about $600,000, based on bitcoin's current trading value.

"Flexcoin was attacked and robbed of all coins in the hot wallet," the company reported

Background

Since its creation in 2009, bitcoin has become popular among tech enthusiasts and risk-seeking investors because it allows people to make one-to-one transactions, buy goods and services and exchange money across borders without involving banks, credit card issuers or other third parties. Criminals like bitcoin for the same reasons.

on its website. "As Flexcoin does not have the resources, assets or otherwise to come back from this loss, we are closing our doors immediately."

An email to the company requesting comment was not immediately returned. But the website did provide details on how the company thinks the theft happened.

"The attacker successfully exploited a flaw in the code which allows transfers between Flexcoin users," it said.

Flexcoin said by sending thousands of simultaneous requests, the attacker was able to move coins from one user account to another until the sending account was overdrawn.

"This was then repeated through multiple accounts, snowballing the amount, until the attacker withdrew the coins."

A line in the company's terms of service says it doesn't insure any of the bitcoins stored on its system nor is it "liable for any lost bitcoins."

Ford scandal helps Star boost its bottom line

The Toronto Star's coverage of scandal-plagued Mayor Rob Ford helped stabilize profits at parent company Torstar Corp. in the fourth quarter, but it wasn't the sole reason for the improved results, company executives said Wednesday.

"If that were the case, the results would be even bigger," laughed John Cruickshank, the newspaper's publisher and president of the Star Media Group, when asked in a conference call what role the controversial Toronto mayor played in the company's latest earnings.

"This really was our revenue sources across all of the spectrum getting closer to historical levels."

OPENING THE LID ON OPIOIDS

How did “a pain in the neck” come to describe an annoying person?

Because I have a pain in my neck keeping me home from work, and it’s much more than annoying. When the doctor asked me to rate the pain on a scale of one to 10, I said I’d need a spinal tap because this one goes to 11.

OK, I didn’t say that. What I said was: “OW makeitstop OW.”

An annoying person should be a rug burn. Or a hangnail. Or a paper cut. All pretty good insults, come to think of it.

A “pain in the neck”? That should be reserved for the Atillas and Stalins and Trumps. History’s greatest monsters.

This hurts so much that I’ve been watching Game of Thrones and after every decapitation I think, “Oh, that’d be sweet relief. Wish I was a traitor.”

The good news is there’s a silver lining — possibly lining the

HE SAYS

John Mazerolle

metronews.ca

muscle in my neck, which would explain the throbbing. The doctor, seeing the brave way I was handling adversity, prescribed me a heavy-duty painkiller to provide relief. This means:

- 1) I get to take opioids.
- 2) I get to write about opioids.
- 3) If I write a lame column and make hack jokes about my doctor’s handwriting, I can blame the opioids.

John’s Guide To Prescription Painkillers

1) I joke around in this column, but you should never, ever abuse drugs that aren’t liquor, beer, wine, snuff, cigarettes, cigars, marijuana, hash or coffee. And even then, only several times a month.

2) Try to look suspicious when you ask for your painkillers. That way, when the pharmacist makes a phone call and you check out, you get to act offended.

3) To check the effectiveness of the security cap, be sure to leave your medication alone in your living room for long periods of time. Better safe than sorry.

4) Remember to look under the rim for your chance at free drugs or one of seven 2014 Dodge Durangos.

5) All the drug-safety guidelines I read remind you to turn on the lights when you take pills. This is to ensure that you’re not blind. If you are blind, call a doctor. Unless you’ve always been blind, in which case call a friend. They’d love to hear from you.

6) After a statistically significant sample of three Percocet, I can say the most interesting effect of opioids is that they don’t make you feel good; they just make you feel less. Part of me had expected to have a Yellow Submarine/Twin Peaks vision trip, but really it was more of a Big Bang Theory/According to Jim trip. I didn’t feel anything, other than hoping it would be over in the next 22 minutes.

And that’s my guide to prescription painkillers. Now that I understand how powerful these drugs are, it makes sense to me that my doctor’s handwriting is so scribbly! Am I right? Sorry, sorry. Dave’s not here, man.

Here’s a plan. Keep doing what you’re doing and try not to be offended so easily. People will always have their own outlook on life, and no matter how skewed it is they have a right to believe in whatever they want. Further, they have a right to express their own incorrect, correct, or outrageous opinions. Why let someone’s rant or comment get you down? Why vent in anger on Facebook? Why even give it a second thought? We call this the “Me Generation” because the majority of people have developed a large sense of self-entitlement and people tend to take every insult and impunity to heart. disqus_z3lferpzrN posted to metronews.ca

I disagree whole heartedly Disqus_z3lferpzrN. I do agree that everyone is entitled to their opinion. But there comes a point when the opinions are just not acceptable and when offered freely and openly like this they are open to the ridicule they deserve. This is SEXISM pure and simple and is not to be tolerated. As any kind of prejudice should not be tolerated. TJE posted to metronews.ca

For you to say that “any kind of prejudice should not be tolerated” is in fact extremely prejudicial and I will not tolerate it. Everyone has prejudice in their thinking towards something whether people like you like it or not, or even realize it or not. Some people are stupid. Some cultures are backwards. Some religions are horrible. I have the right to make such a judgment based on thoughtful study of the facts. Rory Kyle Maxwell posted to metronews.ca

In his book The Universe Within: From Quantum to Cosmos, physicist Neil Turok writes "We are analog beings living in a digital world..."

For its latest album, Maui Tears, San Francisco-based psychedelic rock band Sleepy Sun decided to forgo digital technology and get back to basics, recording entirely to tape. "It really does affect the process, and not only that, but the sound as well," said vocalist Bret Constantino, who is joined in Sleepy Sun by guitarists Matt Holliman and Evan Reiss, bassist Jack Allen and drummer Brian Tice.

"You can't really achieve that kind of sound quality with digital. But mainly it affects the process. There are certain limitations with tape and it has this magical quality of capturing the imperfections that might otherwise come off a little too sheer in a digital medium. The experience of recording to tape trumps the quality, although the quality I think is arguably better for our tastes."

Opting for analog recording also opened up the door for some cool tricks of the tape trade. Take the hand claps on the song Galaxy Punk for instance.

"That's multiple hand clap tracks," Constantino said. "We recorded them backwards. We flipped the tape over and then recorded them with a bunch of reverb, and then flipped the tape back over and they're a reverse clap section."

"It just adds nuances, character. It adds this lurching aspect to the song and it lends to the disorientation of it. That teamed with the bass line makes it kind of warbly. It's all colouration really."

Speaking of cool effects, on the heavy as hell song 11:32, Constantino used some special amplification to bump up the wickedness.

"I used a thing that Tim Green (Maui Tears producer) calls the 'evil mic', a modified SM57 mic that he has," Constantino said.

"I'm sure it (the song) sounds evil for a lot more reasons than that. It's such a straightforward song in terms of its rhythm, structure and melodies, so we wanted to push that to some sort of extreme. Sonically, we strived to make that one as dirty and heavy as possible."

Thou art a villain, Ms. Eva Green

300: Rise of an Empire. Actress seems to be having a little too much fun playing a psychopath

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Eva Green was really looking for an all-out villain to sink her teeth into, and she got that and more with the role of Artemisia in 300: Rise of an Empire.

Green sits down with Metro to discuss playing nuts, using sex as a weapon and the allure the mystical side of things.

You're playing more than just the typical villain in this. Yes. I ... kill people, and I'm not very nice, yes. It's pure villainy. You know, lots of actors will go, "No, she has cracks, she's human." And of course you learn about her back-story and how she's been betrayed by her own countrymen and it has kind of hardened her heart big time. The only challenge is to find maybe some jubilation in this because yeah, she's just ... mental. She has no conscience and she can't tolerate incompetence, and anybody who doesn't follow her orders, just (snaps) "Off with his head!" You can't do that in real life, really.

You also have probably one of the more aggressive sex scenes in this.

I mean, it's more of a fight than a sex scene, really. It's so violent that it was kind of staged as a fight scene. I love when it's kind of clinical. Even a normal sex scene, actually, when they go, "You put your hand here and you here," "How do you do? We're going to have sex." And here it's two warriors having sex. They deal with violence every day, and this is how they do it. It's kind of S&M without the leather. It's not very romantic, let's say.

Broken Bells: Holding on For Life?

No expiry date.

Superduo pledge to continue making music together indefinitely

As The Shins' James Mercer and highly sought-after producer Danger Mouse, whose real name is Brian Burton, were preparing their second album as Broken Bells, they noticed some new benefits to their increasingly worked-in collaboration.

"It's easier to be blunt," said Mercer with a laugh in Toronto, seated in a hotel conference room next to his bandmate. "(Brian can say): 'I don't like that.' And I'm just like, 'OK. On we go.'"

The duo had travelled north for a pair of shows — Monday in Toronto and Tuesday in Montreal — a little over a month following the release of After the Disco.

The band's sophomore effort opened at No. 3 on the Canadian Billboard chart, its highest placement worldwide ("Better taste up here," murmured Mercer when asked to muse on their north-of-the-border success).

True to its title — a reference to the post-party come-down — After the Disco is a rather down affair. Where the first record mixed Mercer's winsome whine with eclectic ear-candy arrangements polished to a lavishe sheen by Burton, its follow-up varies its mood more judiciously, even as certain tunes (especially the title track) dial the tempo upward.

"We both have that affinity for melancholic music," explained Mercer.

If the sound of the record is slightly different, the process behind it really wasn't. Again, Mercer went down to L.A. and stayed in Burton's guest room. Together they worked every day at Burton's studio, staying up late into the night penning lyrics together.

Largely, it seems as though the collaboration is fuelled by their friendship, which has only grown closer since they linked up to work on the first album.

And Burton — who has produced albums for a range of high-profile artists including Norah Jones, Beck, The Black Keys and Cee Lo Green (as the duo Gnarl Barkley) — says Mercer is indeed easier to work with than most.

"This one, there's no politics involved," said Burton, who first gained wide notice for the Beatles/Jay-Z mashup The Grey Album. "There's no watching what you say or what you do so much. It's just me and James."

Discussions of Burton's personal studio might conjure images of a plush musical retreat — but it was actually much more modest. "It was like a crappy lawyer's office," said a laughing Mercer. "Small and dingy. ... It was really that sort of innocuous suburban strip mall office type of thing."

"The vocal booth is pretty hilarious," he added. "There's an auto body shop right behind where the vocal booth sits ... (so)

Quoted

"We both have that affinity for melancholic music." James Mercer, on the mood of Broken Bells' After the Disco you can hear someone grinding the bondo off (a car)."

Although both artists are extremely busy — Burton is currently helping the upcoming U2 record, but declines to offer any details on the long-awaited album — they're insistent that Broken Bells is a going concern.

Burton, especially, has tired of the widely held presumption that this was a collaboration with an expiration date. "It seems like we could keep doing this forever, really," Mercer said.

"It's a band," added Burton. "It would be no different than some band coming in on their second album and asking if they're planning on doing it forever — they'd probably look at you like you're kind of nuts."

"We're a band, why wouldn't we?"

A judge has approved a substantial cut in the amount of child support that Beyoncé Knowles' father must pay because his income dropped after his superstar daughter fired him as her manager.

A ruling obtained by The Associated Press shows that a Los Angeles Superior Court judge cut the amount Mathew Knowles must pay to actress Alexandra Wright from $12,000 US a month to roughly $2,500 US a month. The payments are for a son Knowles fathered with Wright while he was still married to Beyoncé's mother.

Judge Scott Gordon's order is retroactive to February 2013. Although the singer's name is not mentioned in the ruling, it notes that her father's income has substantially fallen since she fired him in 2011. Mathew Knowles sought a reduction in his child support payments, and a hearing was held earlier this year. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In the first look at Lindsay Lohan's OWN post-rehab reality show, her life looks fairly grim. She confesses that being stalked by paparazzi makes her feel like a prisoner "all the time." She looks alternately bored and panicked throughout. Handlers tattled to Oprah that Lindsay is being unprofessional, skipping photo shoots and may be backsliding into addiction.

"This is exactly what everybody said was going to happen," Oprah sighs, "and I believed differently. She doesn't understand that this is your life."

We also glimpse a confrontation between the two, during which Oprah exhorts the OWN star to take her recovery seriously. "My truth is that I really do want you to win," says Oprah.

"No, it's not that I'm not ready to do that. I do want to," Lindsay insists.

"You need to cut the bulls—," Oprah returns.

Not defending Lindsay for leaving crews and co-workers hanging, but possibly her subconscious has realized that most newly recovering alcoholics would be better off anywhere but the set of a reality television show.

I'm sure that's not the case here, though. Oprah would never endanger someone's recovery just for the sake of OWN.

Apparently when Katy Perry kisses a girl, she doesn't like it

Katy Perry kissed another girl, and this time she wasn't really that into it. While visiting Australian talk show Sunrise this week, Perry recounted her close encounter with Miley Cyrus at the Bangerz singer's concert in Los Angeles. "I just walked up to her to give her, like, a friendly, girly kiss. You know, as girls do," Perry said. "And then she, like, tried to move her head and go deeper and I pulled away. God knows where that tongue has been."

From the runway, with love

Fall/Winter Fashion Month has taken four countries by storm once again. Here's a taste of what Metro's gurus of glam were lucky enough to see in the last leg of their high speed, high fashion city-hop. Until next season, style fanatics!

METRO WORLD NEWS

Roberto Cavalli (Milan)

Fire makes the perfect backdrop for Cavalli's flamboyant clothes. When a collection has heaps of dramatic fur on top of feathers on top of python on top of fringe, and tassels, and studs, and beading, the addition of a ring of flames and smoke seems only right and natural. He's cultivated an iconic look that may not set any agendas, but epitomizes Milanese fashion and its trademark carnal glamour. This is the drama we look for from Milano Moda Donna and he's delivered.

Major trends: Python, tassels, contrasting textures, blanket coats, gold.

Prada (Milan)

Prada has an unmistakable way of making the garish look intelligent, the street style bait not look so try-hard, and the commercially appealing look artful. That's why most of these pieces (I'm placing bets on the shearling jackets and sporty platform shoes), which would look ridiculous in anyone else's hands, will most likely fly off the shelves. Remember, Prada has consistently posted sales growth for several years now. Even if this collection is not her most exciting, she's still on a roll.

The major trends: Seventies-inspired prints and shapes, and shearling.

Rochas (Paris)

All of the clothes are stunning, right down to the densely beaded gloves. But too many in the second half of the show look heavy and fussy, like a wardrobe malfunction waiting to happen. That said, this collection falls right in line with the memo that clearly went out for autumn/winter '14: glamour and all of the decorative trappings that come with it, rules.

Major trends: Dense embellishments, outsized volume, experimentations with texture and longer fuller skirts.

Carven (Paris)

Guillaume Henry has referenced a decade other than the '60s this season and I appreciate that. His forties shapes and silhouettes have a film noir sensibility about them. Interestingly, this collection presents a more grown-up look than the girlier, whimsical fare. The strongest looks are the longest: straight, midi-length skirt suits and belted coat dresses and jackets that look like the stuff of Ingrid Bergman movies, with a modern twist.

Major trends: Longer midi skirts, shiny embellishments, shades of blue, and experiments with texture.

Sonia Rykiel (Paris)

The emphasis on knits and sense of humour present in a series of dresses emblazoned with 'Moi' are classic Rykiel, but there's a new contemporary, urban polish here as well. Best of all, everything looks so incredibly cosy and easy to wear. There are enormous Mongolian fur coats, relaxed, softly tailored trousers, oversized waffle knit sweaters and lithe, lean skirt suits, all in the warmest wools and cashmeres.

Major trends: Relaxed slouchy shapes, shaggy outerwear, textured three-dimensional surfaces and midi-length skirts.

Fab visions for vacay finds

Everyone loves to bring back souvenirs from a holiday. Fridge magnets, coffee mugs, tea towels, carved masks and seashells are just a few of the popular items that keep vacation memories alive. Here's what to look for when you're away, and a few ideas to ensure your mementos are displayed to their best advantage once you get them home

DESIGN CENTRE
Karl Lohnes
home@metronews.ca

Rules for travel collecting

1. Before purchasing an item to display in your home, ask yourself if it will fit nicely with your home's decor. A carved African mask would make a great display for bohemian-styled decor but could look out of place in a country-themed room.
2. Keep the entire collection together. Grouping has a bigger impact and creates a strong focal point. Double the impact by placing your display in front of a mirror.

3. Large collections can be divided and grouped by colour or theme to help make a stronger statement.

4. Narrow floating shelves in a hallway or a shelf installed just above a door entrance are great spots to display your collections without taking up valuable tabletop space.

5. Shadow-boxing small items gives them a museum quality, keeps collections tidy and creates unusual wall art.

ISTOCK

Hang a piece of decorative fabric or rug behind a bed to create an instant headboard. Kilim or flat weave carpets can be used as sturdy upholstery for poufs and ottomans. Rugs 3x4 feet or smaller look very special when framed and hung on the wall.

CONTRIBUTED

Vintage tea towels make great artwork for the kitchen when steamed and pressed behind glass. They can also make unique pillows for a kitchen banquette.

Purchase mugs in themed sets. Provincial flowers, city map scenes, animals or flags are options easily found in many tourist haunts. Use a mug tree or a series of shallow wall shelves to show off your curated collection. London Underground Map ceramic mug set of four, 13 pounds, ltmuseumshop.co.uk.

CONTRIBUTED

A grouping of masks can create a statement when hung on the right wall. Keep the collection tightly spaced and match it to your decor through colour or theme. A great place to create a display is on a hallway end wall or in a powder room. Paint the display wall a dramatic colour like rust, teal or grey to create a backdrop that will show off your collection.

ISTOCK

Shadow-box or frame paper souvenirs to show them off. I like to enlarge and laser-print a favourite postcard to create unique art for the wall, then keep the original safe in an album.

Picking pickerel nine ways

Fresh fish. Seagull's restaurant boasts the best of Lake Winnipeg.

SHEL ZOLKEWICH
River City Kitchen
winnipeg@metronews.ca

River City Kitchen went on a road trip recently. Our destination was Hecla Island and the recently-opened Lakeview Hecla Resort. There's a single restaurant on the property and it's a good one. Seagull's is open for breakfast, lunch, dinner and late into the evening. The cozy bar next to the dining space makes one of the province's best Caesars.

Surrounded by Lake Winnipeg, it makes perfect sense that the restaurant specializes in the prize catch—pickerel. The appetizer menu includes sautéed pickerel cheeks and pickerel wontons. Every salad on the menu can be turned into a meal with the addition of a panfried pickerel fillet.

Perhaps the most elegant pickerel dish is an entrée of panfried fillets served with Manitoba wild rice and vegetables. Or get your fish and chips fix with beer-battered pickerel served with house made tartar sauce and a pile of fries.

Seagull's pizzas are tops, made in the super-hot pizza oven that flanks the dining room. The Fish Shack features pickerel cheeks, pine nut pesto, feta, sundried tomatoes and baby spinach.

The pickerel sandwich comes piled high with caramelized onion, roasted red pepper and house made tartar sauce, all on a focaccia bun.

Perhaps the most popular menu item is the Fish Taco Trio. It's chunks of the beer battered pickerel stuffed into warm flour tortillas with all the fixings including a house made chipotle sauce.

You can even get your pickerel fix at dawn with the Fisherman's Breakfast. The plate includes fried pickerel cheeks with two eggs, toast and hashbrowns.

Nutrition marries pizza

Red Pepper and Goat Cheese Pizza. March is Nutrition Month but healthy doesn't mean sacrificing flavour

Healthy helpers

Dietitians of Canada offers up affordable kitchen must-have suggestions.

- Steamer basket. Steaming your veggies is a quick, easy, and healthy alternative to sautéing.
- Oil mister. The tool gives you precise control over how much oil is used.
- Box grater. While we love using our grater for cheese, it can also be used for all kinds of vegetables. Salads with grated zucchini, beets or carrots are a tasty side dish option.

Pizza is a fantastic meal to make on the fly, especially if you have a flatbread or ready-made pizza crust. It's got a big surface, with lots of room for nutrient-filled vegetables.

In this easy-to-make recipe, creamy goat cheese balances the bright and fresh flavours of red pepper, onion and tomato. Combined with mozzarella (a pizza classic), olives and basil, it's a healthy meal that's ready in about 20 minutes.

Feel free to experiment with whatever you might have in the fridge: feta is a welcome substitute for goat cheese; zucchini and mushrooms pair nicely too. Chicken with spinach, red peppers and cheese is another dietitian-approved combo that you can easily cook and enjoy!

Using a baking stone is a great way to give your pizza a crusty finish. Place the pizza stone in a cool oven, turn on the oven and preheat the stone for about 45 minutes before cooking the pizza.

C) if using pizza dough

1. Preheat oven to 400 F (200 C) if using flatbread or 450 F (230

2. Place flatbread on baking sheet. Alternatively, if using pizza dough, spread out dough on lightly greased pizza pan to make a 12-inch (30 cm) circle.

3. Brush olive oil on top of flatbread or pizza dough. Sprinkle with mozzarella cheese. Top with goat cheese, red pepper, tomato, black olives, onion, if using, and basil.

4. Bake pizza in bottom half of preheated oven for 10 to 15

Ingredients

- 1 12-inch round of flatbread or enough pizza dough or a 12-inch (30 cm) pizza crust
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) olive oil
- 1 cup (250 ml) shredded mozzarella cheese
- 1/4 cup (50 ml) cup soft crumbed goat cheese
- 1 large red bell pepper, sliced
- 1 large tomato, sliced
- 1/4 cup (50 ml) sliced black olives
- 1/4 cup (50 ml) sweet Vidalia onion, sliced (optional)
- 1 tsp (5 ml) dried basil (or 2 tbsp/25 ml chopped fresh basil)

FLASH FOOD

From your fridge to your table in 30 minutes or less

Ingredients

- 2 cups (500 ml) sliced zucchini
- 1 small onion, minced
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) butter or margarine
- 1 1/2 tsp (7 ml) olive oil
- 6 eggs, beaten
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) chopped parsley
- 1 tsp (5 ml) ground fennel
- 1/2 tsp (2 ml) ground dried rosemary
- 1/2 tsp (2 ml) salt
- 1/4 tsp (1 ml) ground black pepper
- 2 tbsp (25 ml) shredded Cheddar

You can use whatever you have in your fridge, but six ingredients that will make a great frittata every time are eggs, zucchini, onion, cheese, and herbs and spices. Serve it with a whole grain roll and you will have a balanced meal.

1. In ovenproof skillet over medium-high heat, cook zucchini and onion in butter and olive oil 5 mins. or until tender.

2. In another bowl, combine eggs, parsley, fennel, rosemary, salt and pepper; pour over vegetables. Cook over medium heat, without stirring, until bottom of mixture has set but top is still soft. Sprinkle cheese on top. Place under preheated broiler 3 mins. or until cheese is melted and top is brown.

Jets stand pat at deadline

NHL. GM Cheveldayoff elects not to pull trigger on a trade, signs Stuart to extension instead

Kevin Cheveldayoff made no apologies for not swinging a deal with another club prior to Wednesday afternoon's NHL trade deadline.

The Winnipeg Jets general manager met with the media after the deadline passed and announced the team had signed pending unrestricted free-agent defenceman Mark Stuart to a four-year, $10.5-million US contract.

Cheveldayoff said he had talks with other clubs about trades, but decided the pieces didn't fit within the "parameters" he had set for a squad that's put itself in the hunt for a playoff spot.

When asked if it was a failure that he didn't improve the Jets (30-26-7), he replied that's a matter of perspective.

"A lot of people would love to look at the fact that we didn't make a big deadline acquisition as a failure," Cheveldayoff said.

"A lot would look at the glass half-full and say, 'They didn't sit there and sell. They believe that this group has earned the opportunity to try and move forward."

Head coach Paul Maurice, top right, has the Jets headed in the right direction — upwards in the Western Conference standings toward a playoff berth. JOHN WOODS/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Entering Wednesday night's games, the Jets and Phoenix Coyotes were one point behind the eighth-place Dallas Stars in the battle for the final playoff spot in the Western Conference standings.

Their turnaround began after Cheveldayoff fired head coach Claude Noel on Jan. 12 and replaced him with Paul Maurice, who has sparked the team to an 11-3-2 roll under his leadership.

"I certainly feel very comfortable standing here today knowing the options that were in front of me, knowing the decisions that I made to move forward with," Cheveldayoff said.

"Seeing how the guys have played over the last period of time, I wouldn't view that as a failure. I would view that as an opportunity for the fans here to create a level of excitement and certainly expectation moving forward here that we're still going to try to get into this thing."

The Jets haven't made the playoffs since 2007, when they were still the Atlanta Thrashers.

One thing that factored into his dealings on Wednesday was a hit the team took Tuesday night when rookie centre Mark Scheifele was injured in a 3-2 overtime loss to the New York Islanders.

Tests Wednesday revealed the 20-year-old suffered a sprained medial collateral ligament in his right knee and could be out for at least four weeks.

"There's not going to be any surgery required," Maurice told reporters after Wednesday's practice.

"I think that's a real positive for us in a difficult situation. But it turned out to be a better morning than I was thinking I was going to hear."

Scheifele has 13 goals and 21 assists in 63 games this season. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Elsewhere on deadline day

Martin St. Louis wanted out of Tampa Bay, so Steve Yzerman and the Lightning granted him his wish.

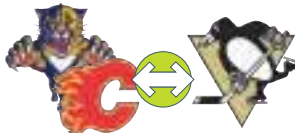

In what could turn out to be the biggest trade ever influenced by the Olympics, St. Louis was dealt to the New York Rangers for Ryan Callahan, a first-round pick in the 2015 draft and a conditional second-rounder year.

St. Louis asked for a trade man, who was Team Canada's executive director, left the initial 25-man roster for Sochi. St. Louis re-placed the injured Steven Stamkos and won a gold medal, but bitterness remained.

Why no move was right move for Jets

THE HOCKEY NEWS

Matt Larkin
winnipeg@metronews.ca

"Sometimes, the best moves are the ones you don't make." It's a cliché used often at trade deadlines in sports and, more often than not, it's a cop-out used by GMs to justify their inability to get a job done.

Refreshingly, in the case of GM Kevin Cheveldayoff and the Winnipeg Jets, it's no excuse. It rings true. Standing pat was the right thing to do at this year's deadline.

The Jets finished the day right where they should've been — not buyers, not sellers. That's a frustrating identity for some fans to accept, I'm sure, but it accurately reflects where this team is.

On one hand, the Jets aren't so out of the playoff hunt that rebuilding was absolutely the right move. By the end of Tuesday's action they sat just one point out of a wildcard playoff spot. They are energized under Paul Maurice, blasting out to an 11-3-2 record.

They are getting great rookie efforts from Mark Scheifele and Jacob Trouba and occasionally useful goaltending (when they start Al Montoya).

Their star forwards, Blake Wheeler, Bryan Little, Andrew Ladd, Evander Kane and, er, Dustin Byfuglien, are at least taking turns being effective this season.

It was a bizarre trade deadline, full of huge names fetching some questionable returns, so pieces like Olli Jokinen and Mark Stuart weren't going to net anything significant and thus weren't worth moving for Cheveldayoff.

In fact, the Jets went the other way and inked Stuart to a four-year, $10.5-million extension. Given how well he and Trouba have played together, it's probably worth it.

On the other hand, the Jets were smart not to buy. This team still has to fight tooth and nail to make the playoffs in a stacked Western Conference and is just 7-12-4 within its division.

Scheifele's knee sprain will also sideline him six to eight weeks. Given how well he's played in the New Year, his loss is a big blow to Winnipeg's post-season hopes. His and Trouba's emergencies are also positive indicators of the Jets' future, with the likes of puck-moving blueliner Josh Morrissey on the way as well. Suddenly, it appears the Jets are actually building something successful, something that may have to wait until next year.

This year is different from last for the Jets in that they've at least shown signs of legitimate long-term improvement. In other words, waiting one more year — and standing pat at the deadline — isn't disastrous.

Koe, Morris fit to be tied at the Brier

Alberta's Kevin Koe and B.C.'s John Morris posted early victories Wednesday to remain tied for top spot at the Canadian men's curling championship.

Koe improved to 7-1 at the Tim Hortons Brier with a 7-3 win over Nova Scotia's Jamie Murphy. Morris kept pace with a 5-3 win over Brad Gushue of Newfoundland and Labrador.

Manitoba's Jeff Stoughton improved to 6-2 with a 9-6 win over Northern Ontario. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Paralympic Games. Red, white and gold all over

Wheelchair curler Sonja Gaudet has been named as Canada's flag-bearer for the opening ceremony of the Sochi Paralympic Games.

The 47-year-old Gaudet is the most decorated wheelchair curler in history, having won gold medals at both the 2006 and 2010 Paralympics.

She also has three world championships to her name.

A native of North Vancouver, B.C., Gaudet will lead a Canadian contingent of 54 athletes into the Fisht Olympic Stadium on Friday night.

"It carries a lot of purpose for me," Gaudet said at Wednesday's announcement. "Of course we're here to compete as athletes with a physical disability at the highest level — that's what the Paralympic Games are."

"It sends a big global message as well about looking past the wheelchair, looking past the visual impairment, looking past the missing limb and really focusing on the person and focusing on what's there."

Gaudet is the second on the Canadian squad to skip Jim Armstrong, who said his teammate is deserving of the honour.

"In the six, seven years that I've known Sonja, all I've done

Sonja Gaudet of North Vancouver.
JONATHAN FERREY/THE CANADIAN

is see her work very hard," said Armstrong, who won gold at the 2010 Vancouver Paralympics with Gaudet. "Her skills have just continued to improve and it has not come easy. She has set a work ethic that any coach would be proud of."

Canada made the podium 19 times in Vancouver and has set a goal of finishing top-three in gold medals in Sochi.

The Winter Paralympics include wheelchair curling, sledge hockey, para-Nordic skiing and biathlon, para-alpine skiing and para-snowboard.

Canada plays two wheelchair curling games on Saturday morning, including a 9:30 a.m. local time (11:30 p.m. CT) start against Britain.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

Family matters will take up most of your time today but don't think that means you cannot have fun. Loved ones are hoping you will suggest a trip you can all enjoy together.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

You know what you want and you know how and where to get it, so all you have to do now is reach out your hand and take it. Sounds easy, doesn't it? Well that's because it is. Make things happen!

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

Good news about your finances is on its way and by the end of the week you will be wondering why and how you allowed yourself to get so worked up about a simple thing like money. Treat yourself — you deserve it.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

You have been a bit to cautious of late but now that Jupiter is moving in your favour again you will find the confidence to take a few risks. If you have not done it already, you should be planning your next adventure.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

You will no doubt wonder what the catch is when someone in a position of authority offers you something you have long desired, but there is no need to be suspicious.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

You want to get things done, but because not everyone is as motivated as you it may take effort to get others to help you. No, you can't go it alone. There is too much to do.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

You will win over even the most reluctant of people today. Create a vision of what it is you intend to achieve and let them see that they can share in the spoils, but they have got to back you — now.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Don't give in today, especially with co-workers who will take advantage of you if you don't stand up for yourself. You may want to help but you should not be doing everything.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

Some people seem to be under the impression that they can snap their fingers and you will come running. But with Jupiter, your ruler, on great form today they are in for a rude awakening.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

You've got a nagging feeling that you could have done more to make a success of a relationship. Maybe you're right but that was then and this is now. Stop looking back.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

Jupiter moves in your favour today, making it easy to break free of habits that are holding you back. Remember: the best way to get rid of a habit is to replace it with a better one that challenges you.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

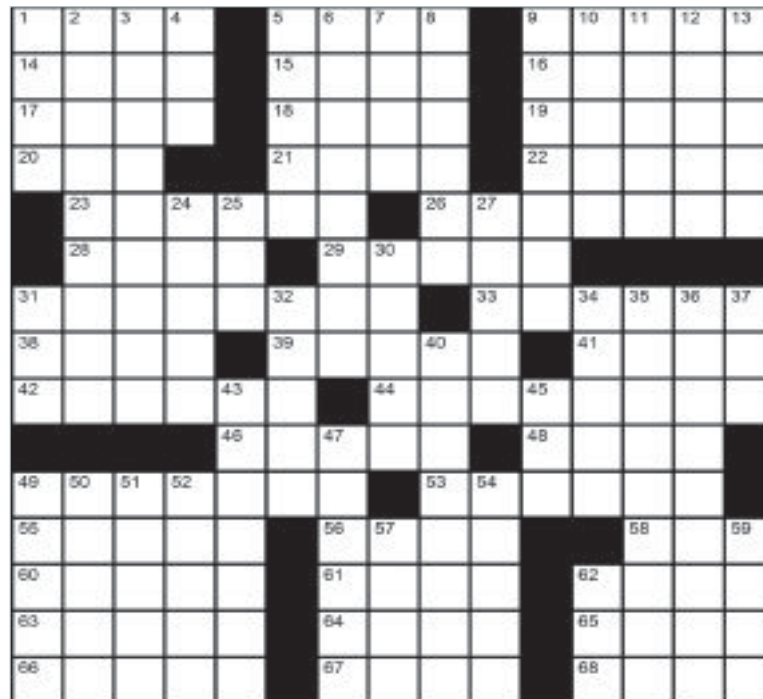

You will get a burst of energy today, enabling you to finish something you started a long time ago. Some people believe that Pisceans are lazy. It's time to prove them wrong.
